EDUCATION AND TRAINING

Loma Linda University, School of Allied Health Professions offers several programs that lead to Registered Dietitian Nutritionist (RDN) exam eligibility:

- The BS + MS program includes one year of graduate study after the completion of undergraduate courses. Graduates are eligible to sit for the RDN exam after completion of the graduate courses. NOTE: The bachelor's and Master's degrees will be awarded at the completion the three-year program.
- The MS (for bachelor graduates in non-nutrition areas/ international students) is a program for persons with a prior bachelor's degree. Students who have completed a bachelor's degree in a nutrition-related field at a non-ACEND accredited program must apply for this degree route. Graduates are eligible to sit for the RDN exam after completion of the MS degree.
- The MS (post-Didactic Program in Dietetics) is for persons who have completed an ACEND-accredited DPD program. Graduates are eligible to sit for the RDN exam after completion of the MS degree.

Prerequisites for these programs are listed on the back of this page.

EMPLOYMENT

Numerous opportunities are available for the Registered Dietitian Nutritionist. Dietitians in Medical Nutrition Therapy (MNT) assess patient's nutritional needs, develop personalized nutrition treatment programs, and evaluate and report results. Dietitians also work in public health clinics, home health agencies, major supermarkets, and food service facilities. Some dietitians oversee large-scale food production and service facilities in health care, college and university cafeterias, correctional facilities, and school food service

Dietitians work under contract with extended health-care facilities or in their own private practice. Others work for wellness programs, sports teams, or other nutrition-related businesses. Some dietitians engage in research activities to enhance the profession. Increased interest in nutrition has led to opportunities in food manufacturing, advertising, and marketing, among others.

EARNINGS

Annual income at the entry-level varies by practice area. According to the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics 2017 Compensation & Benefits Survey of the Dietetics Profession, Registered Dietitians in medical nutrition therapy may expect to earn $65,000; in Food and Nutrition Management, $78,000; in Education and Research, $80,000; in Consultation and Business; $68,000; in Community Nutrition, $56,000.

ACCREDITATION

The coordinated program in dietetics is currently granted continuing accreditation by the Accreditation Council for Education in Nutrition and Dietetics of the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics, 120 South Riverside Plaza, Suite 2190, Chicago, IL 60606-6995; telephone, 800/877-1600, ext. 5400; email, ACEND@eatright.org; website: <http://www.eatrightpro.org/acend>.
